

Grand Manan's Fascinating Shoreline

The western and southern sides of Grand Manan island present a bold front of overhanging cliffs and lofty mural precipices of majestic grandeur and beauty. From Southern Head there winds a path through wind-bent spruce and purple thistle along the edge of the 400-foot-high cliffs to the natural rock formation locally called the Southern Cross (bottom photo). On the western side, in a deep indentation of the awesome cliffs lies Dark Harbour Lake, fringed on the ocean side by a rocky beach tossed up by fierce storms. It is here that the world-famous Dark Harbour dulce is gathered from rocks at low tide and dried on the beach under the warm summer sun. During the period from May to October families live in these tiny shacks to be near their harvest. Many of the dulce picker can make $80 in a couple of good tides! Dulce, rich in iodine and other mineral nutrients, is a health food but is eaten because of its crunchy goodness. (Hinson photos)
