GRAND MANAN.

We are having a most pleasant summer, and our hotels and boarding houses are fast becoming a most favorable resort, for it possesses so many attractions, that are unique and are peculiar to this island. The means for pleasure are full and complete. Our accommodation, considering the fact that the Marble Bridge Hotel is one that would do credit to any city in the province. The commanding position to the island makes it a great resort, and the waters are clear and bracing.

The catering is the hands of Capt. Peters and his excellent wife. At Seal Cove, one of the most charming spots in the province, Capt. B. McLaughlin accommodate and supply the wants of visitors in the real old-fashioned homely style. Visitors to the island should not be allowed to pass by without paying a visit to Seal Cove. Large numbers of new buildings are being erected all along the island. The Chanslor's Farm, the Boston Tavern, the House of the Great Seal, and the Seal Cove Inn, are all great beauties.

Temperance is strong here; not a drop of rum is to be had in any of the hotels. Fishing is fishing is the best thing in the world. The Telegraph.

"By gosh," said the Captain of the American schooner to the "Journal" man, "this is the purest place I have seen for years. I have been here many times, and have seen the sea in all its moods, but this is the purest place I have ever been in before." How it is that we do not go to Grand Manan during the hot months and have a good time here with our feet turned up to a red-hot stove, I don't know. Here you have fog, while there they have fog, and we have it too. But it is true that the women folks can't go out of doors without being loaded down with waterproofs.

We 'clipped' the above from the Annapolis Journal, and must put in our disclaimer, in simple justice to Grand Manan. Capt. Peters, and not Capt. Peters, keeps the Marble Bridge Hotel, and not the Marble Bridge Hotel.

And we doubt that Mr. and Mrs. W. B. McLaughlin accommodated visitors only in the "old-fashioned homely style." That gentleman and his good understanding the modern style as well as others.

But it is with the remarks of the "captain of the American schooner" to the "Journal" editor, that we take exception. That "visitors to Grand Manan during the hot months have to sit from morning till night with their feet turned up to a red-hot stove," is a foolish assertion; and as unfounded as it is silly.

And then that "the women folks can't go out of doors without being loaded with waterproofs," is also untrue.

However, the best evidence that Captain—"By gosh," has stated, what's Bosh—is, that the number of summer visitors to Grand Manan increases each season. That Yankee Captain was trying to imitate "Sam Slak," but he couldn't.
